We will be traveling the routes of the earliest Christian missionaries, church leaders, and martyrs by bus and by foot to better understand the rise and growth of early Christianity and to create and deepen the students' knowledge and understanding of the texts of early Christianity. By traveling to some of the most significant sites of the early Christian church, the student will be better able to understand the relation of history to geography and the impact of place upon the growth not only of the Church in its material form, but in its theological development. Students will be able to explore archaeological sites significant to the history and formation of the Christian church. To this end, each stop at an ancient Christian site, whether Ephesus (Turkey) or Philippi (Greece), will be accompanied by relevant readings from the Epistles of the Apostle Paul, The Acts of the Apostles, The Epistles of Ignatius of Antioch or the Epistles of Clement of Rome, to name some of the important readings. Secondly, the course will explore the continuing diversity of Christianity today in what are now predominantly Jewish and Muslim lands and to introduce students to Oriental Christianity not as a relic of the past but an aspect of a rich array of the cultures of the Mediterranean world and the life of the Church. A secondary goal in Turkey will be to introduce students to a predominantly Muslim country, to understand the culture and religion of Islam, and to meet with Turkish university students.

Prerequisites: For all campuses except UST, a theology course. For UST students, Theology 101 and a 200-level Theology course.

He teaches courses in New Testament and Judaism and has published numerous articles on this time period, as well as books on Philo of Alexandria and Apocalyptic thought. In 2002 he toured early Christian sites on the Aegean coast in Turkey, and in Istanbul, where he not only gained valuable insight into the actual sites, but also was able to plan for the course and to meet course organizers, guides and hoteliers. Dr. Martens also gained valuable contacts and information from the 2004 J-Term in Greece and Rome and the January 2006 J-term in Turkey and Greece. He has also spent the Fall 2007 semester leading students in Rome. He led a study-abroad course during January 2004 to Greece and Italy and in 2006 to Turkey and Greece.

Dr. Gavriluk holds a Ph.D. in Early Christianity. His secondary field of expertise is modern Eastern Orthodoxy, the dominant religious orientation in Greece. Dr. Gavriluk taught "Orthodoxy and Catholicism in Ukraine" for UST; he co-directed a UMAIE course "The Sacred Places of France," and taught a semester-long course in Italy as a part of UST's Catholic Studies Program.
