Price: $5,745*

This course is a study of the origins of sports and athletics through the lens of the ancient and modern Olympic Games. The course begins in Greece in the cities of Athens, Nemea, Olympia, and Delphi. These Greek cities have ancient and modern Olympic sites, such as the first Olympic complex dating to 776 BC, and other Olympic excavations from the 8th to the 3rd century BC. These would be in Nemea, Olympia and Delphi. There are two modern stadiums in Athens, the first modern Olympic stadium from 1896, and the 2004 Olympic Complex and venues. Within the locations are museums that hold many artifacts from the ancient sporting events, such as discus, javelin, weights, clothing, chariots, and statuary.

After Greece the course moves on to Rome, city of the Roman Games at the Colosseum, Palatine Hill and Circus Maximus. There are glorious artifacts in museums in Rome, where students will learn of the grand scale of sport festivals and spectacles that were staged by the Roman emperors for their personal entertainment.

The last part of the course will be in Turin and Sestriere, Italy and Lausanne, Switzerland. Turin and the Sestriere are the sites of the 2006 winter Olympics, and this is where the students will have the opportunity to experience some events from the Olympics. They will also be part of a mini Olympic closing festival. Lausanne, two hours from Sestriere is the headquarters of the International Olympics, established by Barron Coubertin, the father of the modern Olympic games. There will be a rich list of experiences for students at the site, after which they will return to the United States, a few weeks before the 2010 Winter Olympics in Canada.

Comprehensive Fee Includes: Transportation and course arrangements as indicated, hotel accommodations in twin and triple rooms, continental breakfast daily, two lunches and four group dinners. (subject to change)

Prerequisites: Students in this course must be physically capable of walking long distances over terrain that can lead up to high areas. However, there are moderate and vigorous physical activities in the course that are required for a passing grade, but students will be able to design some of their own level of activity.
