Price: $4,775*

What makes the French "French" and not anything else? Are we all a little bit French? Through readings, lectures, site visits, and individual exploration of the city of Paris, students will be introduced to important elements of French national identity, including key historical, architectural, and artistic monuments. As they explore the city, students will be encouraged to experience its treasures – big and small – from a French perspective. They will gain an understanding of the role cultural treasures may play in an individual's understanding of his or her own identity, as well as the ways in which cultural artifacts and sites may contribute to a shared sense of community. Students will be encouraged to question how "community" can or should be defined.

This course offers a French language intensive track for students wishing to earn upper-division French credit, as well as a track for students with little or no knowledge of French. The latter will receive basic instruction in the French language in order to help them maximize their experience in Paris. Course materials will include readings on French history, culture, architecture, and art, as well as literary descriptions of Paris. A course packet will provide practical information and a series of activities to guide students in their exploration of the city.

Comprehensive Fee Includes: Transportation and course arrangements as indicated, hotel accommodations in twin and triple rooms, continental breakfast daily, one lunch, dinner with the exception of one day and one cultural performance. (subject to change)

Prerequisites: To earn upper-division French credit for a major, minor, or co-major, the prerequisite is FREN 300 (at UST) or its equivalent.

Students choosing the non-French track may be at any stage of their academic program; they should be prepared for the critical thinking demanded by this course and be aware that the course requires some independent problem-solving in a foreign environment.

Required Readings: Comprendre le patrimoine
Julien Green's Paris

Course packet for each of the two tracks (French and non-French).

Evaluation:

Attendance	10%
Participation	20%
Cultural Competency	40%
